BATTLE IN THE BAY!!

Michael C. Hebert / Saints

It's another Do-or-Die game for the Black N Gold here in Week 7! There's the aspect of getting our first division win, the problem of getting our fifth loss, and of course, this is all happening at Raymond James Stadium, where Payton-Era Saints teams have always had better luck than they have when playing the Bucs at The Dome, if you can believe that! Yes, it's true. I looked it up. Also, it's the last game that we'll have an Interim-Interim Head Coach as Aaron Kromer will be handing over those head coaching duties to Vitt next week. Let's hope Kromer can go out on a win, shall we? He better.

The Saints are coming off of a week six bye following a dramatic come-from-behind 31-24 win against the San Diego Chargers on Sunday, October 7 in a game which marked the most complete performance for the New Orleans offense and defense to date as both units helped the team rebound from a ten point deficit near the end of the 3rd Qtr.

Quarterback Drew Brees completed 29-of-45 passes for 370 yards, a season-high four touchdown passes and 110.4 passer rating. Brees' first quarter 40-yard touchdown pass to WR, Devery Henderson gave him sole possession of a 52-year NFL record with 48 consecutive games of at least one touchdown pass, a mark he previously shared with Johnny Unitas....

Henderson and his fellow starting WR, Marques Colston both enjoyed standout performances. Colston had a game-high nine receptions for 131 yards, while tying a career-high with three touchdown receptions, including the fourth-quarter go-ahead five-yard scoring grab from Brees. In addition to his historic connection with the signal caller, Henderson posted eight receptions for 123 yards. It was the first time two Saints wide-outs have put up at least eight receptions, 120 receiving yards and one touchdown apiece in a contest.

The New Orleans defense surrendered their lowest point total of the season, yielding only one touchdown in the second half.

For those of you who missed it.

SERIES HISTORY: Sunday's game between these two NFC South rivals promises to be hard-fought, as both clubs are seeking to improve their standing in a competitive NFC South. New Orleans holds a 23-17 edge in the all-time rivalry with the two clubs splitting the season series each year since 2008. Each club won a victory at home in 2011.

The Saints fell to the Buccaneers 26-20 in Tampa on October 16, 2011 in a contest where the club nearly rallied from a 20-7 deficit after Head Coach Sean Payton had to hand over play-calling duties to offensive coordinator Pete Carmichael when he suffered a leg injury following an on-field collision. The Saints evened the score though with a 27-16 win over Tampa Bay in the Mercedes-Benz Superdome on November 6, (my Birthday) in what would be the start of an eight-game winning streak to end the 2011 regular season.

Tampa Bay defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 38-10 on last Sunday, so naturally, we really need to shoot holes in these guys.

NFL POWER RANKINGS (after Week 6):

3. Houston Texans	5-1
4. Baltimore Ravens	5-1
5. Chicago Bears	4-1
25. New Orleans Saints	1-4
32. Jacksonville Jaguars	1-4 (dead last)
