JOIN THE FIGHT!!

VS.

WEST COAST KRYPTONITE: The Saints have always had trouble when it came down to battling against teams from the West Coast. From their days in the NFC West (before the 4-Division Realignment of 2002) when their longtime rival the 49ers and ‘thorn in their side’ L.A. Rams always seem to beat them even in games that New Orleans had a late 4th Quarter lead in...and all the way up to the Payton-Brees Era, where the Saints seem to come up short in the Playoffs when facing West Coast Teams...but only while playing on the west coast, which leaves me to believe that there’s some kind of wicked spell in play when it comes to crossing into the “Pacific Time-Zone”??

With the Alimighty’s blessing...the Boyz N Black & Gold will buck this trend to open the 2015 Season.

SERIES HISTORY: 29th regular-season meeting overall. The Series Record is tied at 14-14, but the Saints won the previous match-up 31-7 in 2013. Saints have won 10 of the last 14 matchups including a 45-14 smack-down of the Cards in the 2009 Playoffs. Below is the battle history between the Boyz N Black & Gold and the “Road-Kill Red Birds” since the start of the Millennium.

Date	Team	Opponent	H/A	Stadium	Result	Attend
09/22/2013	New Orleans Saints	Arizona Cardinals	H	The Dome	W 31-7	73,057
10/10/2010	New Orleans Saints	Arizona Cardinals	A	Phoenix Stadium	L 30-20	62,621
01/16/2010*	New Orleans Saints	Arizona Cardinals	H	The Dome	W 45-14	70,149
12/16/2007	New Orleans Saints	Arizona Cardinals	H	The Dome	W 31-24	70,007
10/03/2004	New Orleans Saints	Arizona Cardinals	A	Sun Devil Stadium	L 34-10	28,109

INJURY REPORT

It's not surprising to see the list of players that won't play in the game this week.

Safety Jairus Byrd OUT
LB Dannell Ellerbe OUT
RB C.J Spiller OUT
DB Keenan Lewis OUT
LB Davis Tull OUT
RB Tim Hightower Probable

Without Jairus Bryd and Keenan Lewis in the line up, the Cardinals offense will likely target shots at Rafael Bush and Delvin Breaux. This isn't something that is a surprise to the Saints, they've known about the likelihood of both Lewis and Byrd not being on the field for several weeks.

Linebacker Davis Tull is not significant this week, along with LB Dannell Ellerbe. Ellerbe hasn't played since week one of the preseason, and the Saints received really strong play at inside linebacker from veteran David Hawthorne and Rookie Stephone Anthony.

Captain Cam: Saints defensive end Cameron Jordan spoke to the media for the first time since being named a team captain, and for the first time since his off the field incident last Sunday at the Republic that is now under investigation for misdemeanor sexual battery. "As more and more and more information comes out it dissipates, and that's what I'm looking forward to," Jordan said. "Everybody would like to be exonerated in any situation. I'm going to let the system play out, and do my best to focus on the next game, being the best player, captain and dad that I can be," he added. Jordan went on to say that he addressed his teammates on the situation, and is trying to put the incident in the rear view mirror, and also acknowledged the league is looking into the situation.

Number change: Saints rookie linebacker Hau'oli Kikaha will wear number 44 this season. Some numbers don't matter to players, and for Kikaha, 44 has an interesting significance. "I've wanted it for a while. I got drafted at 44 (44th overall in round 2 of this year), I'm the 44th descendant of my great-grandmother, who's the matriarch of our family," he said. Kikaha had worn number 45 in the preseason, but when FB Toben Oपुरum was released and placed on the practice squad he grabbed the number. I also asked him about controlling his energy and guarding against getting too hyped up before his NFL debut this Sunday. "Not so much during the game, or during the week, I'm just saving energy pregame," I can't wait to see this guy play. He's incredibly focused, and driven by success and you can feel his intensity and maturity. Football is very important to him.
