

DALLAS DOME

SIR SAINT WILL LEAD US TO VICTORY
OVER THE EVIL TEAMS OF THE NFC SOUTH

OFFICIAL 2009 SEASON NEWSLETTER – SUPER BOWL UPDATE

*W*hen Drew Brees & the “Aerial Assault’s” top-ranked offense takes on the Indianapolis Colts in SB44; it’ll be more devastating than any match-up the Colts have had to face this season or in these Playoffs.

*H*ow can the Colts match-up? Especially with the SAINTS’ big-play defense which has demonstrated a penchant for making clutch stops and producing game-changing turnovers all season long. Just ask “Captain Turncoat”!

*O*n the surface the Peyton Manning-led Colts are five-point favorites in Sunday’s Super Bowl. Yet the SAINTS have shown—during a 13-2-1 regular season and a pair of playoff wins over teams with future Hall of Fame QB’s—that they have what it takes to bring the fans of Who-Dat Nation its first NFL championship on Sunday night.

*D*ays have passed since the Battle of Favre's Last Stand, but now another enemy awaits the 2009 SUPER-SAINTS in South Florida this Sunday, and Peyton Manning isn't taking any prisoners. Neither should we....

*A*nd that's why on Sunday you will see the greatest SAINTS team ever assembled bring home the "Holy Grail"....

*T*he time is now....

The Prayer of the Who-Dat:

Our Breesus who art in Nawlins, hallowed be thy name.
Thy bowl will come; it will be won, in Miami as it is in The Dome.

Give us this Sunday, our weekly win, and give us many
TD passes, but do not let others pass against us.

Lead us not into frustration, but deliver us to the Super Bowl, for thou is the MVP and best of the NFC, and the glory of the Fleur de Lis now and forever.

Who-Dat...Who-Dat.

The Saintsguy's SUPER-BOWL Code:

If you take the number of years between the first 2 Championship losses for the Colts (1964 & 1967) you get the #3, that's the total number of points that they won their first Championship by with a final score of 16-13 in 1970 over the Cowboys. Then take the final score total of that first Championship victory and you have a total of '29'. That's the total number of points scored by the Colts when they defeated the Bears 29-17 in the Championship Game 3 yrs ago. Using the same equation; take the number of yrs between their last two Championship appearances (2006 & 2009) and you get '3' again. Then take the difference between the points scored from the 2006 Championship game and you get '12'. It was the Jets that the Colts had to defeat to get into the Championship game this year with a final score of 30-17. (Remember, the Jets were the last team to defeat the Colts in a Championship game and it was their first appearance in the championship, 1967). If you take the total of the Jets/Colts Title Game score of this year (which is '47') and minus the 12 point differential from the 2006 Championship you get '35'. This is how many points the Colts will score on Sunday. To determine the winner; let's take into consideration that the total number of points scored by the Saints in their first Playoff win in franchise history was '31' (Dec. 2000, 31-28) and the final score totaled '59' and then minus the points scored by the Saints in their last Playoff loss (Jan. 2006, 39-14) and you have a total of '45'. This will be the number of points scored by the Saints on Sunday.

With a final score of 45-35 we are given a differential of 10 pts which is the number of points scored by the Saints in their first Playoff loss (Jan. 1988, 44-10) and last meeting with the Colts (Sept. 2007, 41-10).

But Think About This: If the Saints had won the 2006 Title Game they would've played against the Colts that year instead of the Bears. The Colts/Bears 2006 Championship final was 29-17, which totals '46'. Chicago's last Championship victory was in Super Bowl XX against the New England Patriots with a final score of 46-10. The location was New Orleans. The '46' is important bcuz that's the number of points that were scored by the Saints the last time they played in Miami earlier this season in Week 7!
